

PAPER NAME

Scribbr.docx

AUTHOR

-

WORD COUNT

3238 Words

CHARACTER COUNT

18062 Characters

PAGE COUNT

12 Pages

FILE SIZE

30.3KB

SUBMISSION DATE

Jun 30, 2023 10:24 AM GMT+3

REPORT DATE

Jun 30, 2023 10:24 AM GMT+3● 25% Overall Similarity

The combined total of all matches, including overlapping sources, for each database.

- 25% Internet database
- 0% Publications database

● Excluded from Similarity Report

- Bibliographic material
- Small Matches (Less than 9 words)

1 – Human Text

Characteristics Of A Leader

The way a society is led has an impact not only on its politics and economy but also on its culture. When a leader can excite and inspire individuals who work under their supervision, incredible things have the potential to happen. Leadership requires having the ability to inspire confidence in and participation from one's followers. These traits have a good chance of surviving, and possessing them is essential for success in any industry. Many well-known leaders throughout history have exhibited these traits, and as a consequence, both the world and the people who followed them have undergone significant change. It is vital to be aware of the qualities that constitute a great leader to encourage those who have the potential to become leaders to achieve their goals and contribute to society. It is essential to analyze the leaders' attributes and effects.

Nelson Mandela is a remarkable leader who has the power to change the world and inspire future generations. Nelson Mandela's influence on his followers and the world is immeasurable. His commitment to equality and justice inspired his supporters to oppose apartheid (Yang 398). Mandela won by bringing together supporters from all backgrounds through his leadership and communication abilities. His Truth and Reconciliation Commission looked into human rights violations and supported racial reconciliation. Even after being brutally tortured and imprisoned for years, Mandela never gave up (Elhanafi 7). Because of his ability to persist, negotiate, and advance peace, he was a remarkable leader. Future generations will be united by his legacy, which will promote justice and equality (Yang 398). Nelson Mandela motivated his supporters and the neighborhood despite persecution and death threats.

Because of his unwavering commitment to advancing justice, equality, and reconciliation throughout his life, Nelson Mandela is the ideal model for a powerful leader. Amid unfathomable anguish, he had incredible tenacity and determination, and the story of his perseverance and will to live continues to motivate people worldwide. It is remarkable how well he can function as a mediator and bring together people who disagree with one another (Elhanafi 7). Mandela's approach to leadership was so inclusive and empathetic that he could see things from everyone's perspective and find common ground. Young political leaders might take inspiration from Mandela's leadership by seeing how he overcame violent resistance to achieve his aims using nonviolent means (Yang 398). His commitment to democracy, justice, and equality should inspire political leaders to prioritize the welfare of their constituents over their interests (Elhanafi 7). Future leaders can learn from Mandela's approach to reconciliation on how to promote peace and cohesion in the wake of violence or discord (Yang 398). Leadership that values communication, compassion, and understanding may lead to more collaboration and a stronger sense of belonging (Elhanafi 7). In sum, Mandela should serve as an inspiration to aspiring politicians and leaders of all stripes.

The traits of effective leaders include vision, communication, dedication, and the ability to motivate followers to take action. Great leaders like Nelson Mandela and others have proven to have far-reaching effects on their followers and society as a whole. They motivate others to stand up for their beliefs, band together to achieve a common goal and make a positive difference in the world. Success and the furtherance of positive change are dependent on strong leadership, the importance of which cannot be overstated. Let us take inspiration from the qualities of great leaders like Nelson Mandela and work toward improving our lives and communities. Let us resolve to develop our leadership potential and make a difference in the world.

Works Cited

Elhanafi, Enas. "Transformational Leadership: Flow, Resonance, and Social Change." The Journal of Traditions & Beliefs 6.1 (2019): 7.

Yang, Kailin. "The good leaders of characteristics and behavior." Advances in Education, Humanities and Social Science Research 4.1 (2023): 398-398.

2 – Internet Text

Characteristics of A Leader

¹ Leadership is one of the most essential criteria of the nurse manager. It is the process of interaction between the leader and the other staff, influencing them toward workplace goals achievement (Yukl, 1998). Leadership is the ability to provide direction toward preferred future aspirations and aligns the followers toward goals achievement (Kelly-Heidenthal, 2004).

Moreover, leadership is viewed as a dynamic interactive process that involves various dimensions, including planning, organizing, directing and controlling. The activities of an organized group can be influenced by a process in which the efforts to achieve the goals and tasks are managed by leadership (Roussel, Russell & Swansburg, 2006). Leadership is also defined as inducing individuals or a group to take an action in accordance with the purpose of the leader. Moreover, Roussel, Russell and Swansburg (2006) correctly pointed out that leadership can be explained as a group of individuals who have been inspired by a person to work together toward achieving common goals and missions using appropriate means. A crowd can be transformed into a functioning and useful organization, and this is a vital component of leadership.

Leadership can be formal or informal. As Sullivan and Decker (2004) explain, it can be formal when a nurse manager demonstrates power and authority within a framework of legal approval by the organization. Leadership can be informal when utilized by a staff member who does not have effective leadership skills, ideas and roles to promote the performance of the work outcomes.

Mrs. Zahra is a nursing officer who has been working since 1996 in charge of a department in the Armed Forces Hospital, Sultanate of Oman. She is known to everybody in the department and all around the hospital as a friendly person who is intelligent, hard working, motivational, a good communicator and a person with a strong personality that inspires others to follow her. In addition, Mrs. Zahra has problem solving skills and extensive experience and knowledge in her speciality as well as in leadership and management. Further, she is a member of the Quality Assurance and Staff Development Committees. As she is in charge of the operating theaters department, she manages the planning and coordination of the operating rooms scheduling system. Moreover, she adjusts the staffing assignments of nursing and ancillary personnel to provide adequate room coverage. Motivation, direction, controlling and evaluation of the staff performance are some of the leader's responsibilities.

1 Mrs. Zahra treats all staff in a friendly way, equally and with perfect communication skills acceptable to all of them. This leads to building a trusting relationship between her and the staff. In addition, the leader involves all the staff in the organization's vision and treats each staff member as a part of it. As a result, the self confidence of the staff is gained and restored. The leader is concerned about the values and needs of her staff as she routinely holds individual meetings with each staff member in her office, asking each one of them about their feelings, needs and problems and tries to address them.

Further, she shares many responsibilities and power with the staff; therefore, the staff feel responsible to work harder and more effectively. This causes all staff to be more motivated and work hard to accomplish the goals and tasks of the organization. The leader holds general meetings with all staff frequently sharing with them decision-making, work strategies and any other new ideas from the staff. Consequently, all staff are inspired to be a part of the team, working hard and effectively for the vision of the organization.

2 Leadership is one of the most important skills in nurse managers. It is a process of interaction between the leader and the staff, influencing them positively toward achieving the goals and tasks of the organization.

Works Cited

Kelly-Hiedenthal P, 2004. Essentials of Nursing Leadership & Management, Delmer Learning, USA.

Roussel L & Swansburg R, 2009. Management and leadership for nurses administrators, 5th edition, Jones and Bartlett, USA.

Sullivan E & Decker P, 2004. Effective Leadership & Management Nursing, 6th edition, Pearson Education, New Jersey, USA.

Yukl G, 1998. Leadership in Organizations, 4th edition, Upper Saddle River, New Jersey.

3 – AI paraphrase

Quilbot

Characteristics Of A Leader

A society's culture is influenced by its leadership just as much as its politics and economy are. Incredible things have the potential to occur when a leader is able to energize and motivate the people who work under their direction. To be a leader, one must be able to encourage people to follow and to participate. These characteristics are likely to last, and having them is necessary for success in any field. These characteristics have been shown by several notable leaders throughout history, and as a result, both the world and those who came after them have undergone considerable change. Knowing what makes a great leader is essential for motivating individuals with the capacity to lead to fulfill their potential and make a positive impact on society. It is crucial to examine the traits and outcomes of the leaders.

Nelson Mandela is a brilliant leader with the capacity to uplift present and coming generations. Nelson Mandela has had an incalculable impact on his supporters and the globe. His commitment to equality and justice inspired his supporters to oppose apartheid (Yang 398).

Mandela triumphed by uniting people from all walks of life thanks to his charismatic leadership and persuasiveness. His Truth and Reconciliation Commission encouraged racial harmony while investigating abuses of human rights. Even after being brutally tortured and imprisoned for years, Mandela never gave up (Elhanafi 7). He was a notable leader because of his capacity for perseverance, negotiation, and peace advancement. Future generations will be united by his legacy, which will promote justice and equality (Yang 398). Despite being persecuted and receiving death threats, Nelson Mandela inspired his followers and the community.

Nelson Mandela is the perfect example of a strong leader due to his constant dedication to furthering justice, equality, and peace throughout his life. He showed remarkable courage and resolve in the face of unimaginable suffering, and the tale of his toughness and will to live continues to inspire people all over the world. It is remarkable how well he can function as a mediator and bring together people who disagree with one another (Elhanafi 7). Mandela's leadership style was so inclusive and sympathetic that he was able to understand everyone's viewpoint and discover points of agreement. Young political leaders might take inspiration from Mandela's leadership by seeing how he overcame violent resistance to achieve his aims using nonviolent means (Yang 398). His commitment to democracy, justice, and equality should inspire political leaders to prioritize the welfare of their constituents over their interests (Elhanafi 7). Future leaders can learn from Mandela's approach to reconciliation on how to promote peace and cohesion in the wake of violence or discord (Yang 398). Leadership that values communication, compassion, and understanding may lead to more collaboration and a stronger sense of belonging (Elhanafi 7). In conclusion, Mandela ought to serve as an example for aspiring officials and leaders of all backgrounds.

Vision, communication, commitment, and the capacity to inspire people to take action are qualities of good leaders. The impact of great leaders like Nelson Mandela and others on their followers and society at large has been demonstrated. They inspire others to stand up for their values, work together to accomplish a shared objective, and change the world for the better.

Strong leadership is essential for achievement and the advancement of constructive change, and its significance cannot be emphasized. Let's endeavor to improve our lives and communities by drawing strength from the traits of great leaders like Nelson Mandela. Let's make a commitment to maximizing our leadership potential and changing the world.

Works Cited

Elhanafi, Enas. "Transformational Leadership: Flow, Resonance, and Social Change." The Journal of Traditions & Beliefs 6.1 (2019): 7.

Yang, Kailin. "The good leaders of characteristics and behavior." Advances in Education, Humanities and Social Science Research 4.1 (2023): 398-398.

ChatGPT

Characteristics Of A Leader

The manner in which a society is governed not only affects its political and economic spheres, but also permeates its cultural aspects. Astounding outcomes are possible when a leader possesses the ability to stimulate and motivate those under their guidance. Leadership necessitates instilling trust and fostering active involvement from followers. Qualities such as these have a strong propensity for enduring, and they are crucial for attaining success across all sectors. Numerous celebrated leaders throughout the annals of history have displayed these attributes, consequently instigating profound changes in the world and in the lives of their followers. Recognizing the elements that make a great leader is critical in guiding those with leadership potential towards achieving their aspirations and enriching society. Evaluating the characteristics and impacts of leaders is of paramount importance.

Nelson Mandela is an extraordinary leader with the capacity to transform the globe and motivate upcoming generations. The impact that Mandela has had on his followers and the world at large is beyond quantification. His commitment to equality and justice inspired his supporters to oppose apartheid (Yang 398). Mandela succeeded by unitifying followers from diverse backgrounds using his leadership skills and effective communication. His establishment of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission investigated human rights abuses and fostered racial harmony. Even after being brutally tortured and imprisoned for years, Mandela never gave up (Elhanafi 7). Because of his ability to persist, negotiate, and advance peace, he was a remarkable leader. Future generations will be united by his legacy, which will promote justice and equality (Yang 398). Despite facing oppression and threats to his life, Nelson Mandela inspired both his followers and the community at large.

Due to his steadfast dedication towards promoting fairness, equality, and reconciliation throughout his life, Mandela stands as the epitome of an influential leader. Even amidst extreme suffering, his exceptional resilience and resolve were noteworthy, and his tale of enduring courage and survival continues to inspire individuals around the globe. It is remarkable how well he can function as a mediator and bring together people who disagree with one another (Elhanafi 7). Mandela's leadership style was so encompassing and compassionate that he had the ability to view situations from everyone's viewpoint and identify mutual understanding. Young political leaders might take inspiration from Mandela's leadership by seeing how he overcame violent resistance to achieve his aims using nonviolent means (Yang 398). His commitment to democracy, justice, and equality should inspire political leaders to prioritize the welfare of their constituents over their interests (Elhanafi 7). Future leaders can learn from Mandela's approach to reconciliation on how to promote peace and cohesion in the wake of violence or discord (Yang 398). Leadership that values communication, compassion, and understanding may lead to more collaboration and a stronger sense of belonging (Elhanafi 7). In conclusion, Mandela should act as a beacon of inspiration for budding politicians and leaders across the spectrum.

The hallmarks of effective leadership encompass vision, communication, commitment, and the capacity to spur followers into action. Renowned leaders like Nelson Mandela and others have exhibited far-reaching influences on their followers and society at large. They galvanize others to advocate for their convictions, unify to attain a collective objective, and effect positive change in the world. The advancement of positive transformations relies heavily on robust leadership, whose significance cannot be emphasized enough. Let's draw inspiration from the attributes of formidable leaders like Nelson Mandela and strive to better our lives and communities. Let's commit to harnessing our leadership potential to create a meaningful impact in the world.

Works Cited

- Elhanafi, Enas. "Transformational Leadership: Flow, Resonance, and Social Change." The Journal of Traditions & Beliefs 6.1 (2019): 7.
- Yang, Kailin. "The good leaders of characteristics and behavior." Advances in Education, Humanities and Social Science Research 4.1 (2023): 398-398.

4 – Character change

Characteristics Of A Leader

The way a society is led has an impact not only on its politics and economy but also on its culture. When a leader can excite and inspire individuals who work under their supervision, incredible things have the potential to happen. Leadership requires having the ability to inspire confidence in and participation from one's followers. These traits have a good chance of surviving, and possessing them is essential for success in any industry. Many well-known leaders throughout history have exhibited these traits, and as a consequence, both the world and the people who followed them have undergone significant change. It is vital to be aware of the qualities that constitute a great leader to encourage those who have the potential to become leaders to achieve their goals and contribute to society. It is essential to analyze the leaders' attributes and effects.

Nelson Mandela is a remarkable leader who has the power to change the world and inspire future generations. Nelson Mandela's influence on his followers and the world is immeasurable. His commitment to equality and justice inspired his supporters to oppose apartheid (Yang 398). Mandela won by bringing together supporters from all backgrounds through his leadership and communication abilities. His Truth and Reconciliation Commission looked into human rights violations and supported racial reconciliation. Even after being brutally tortured and imprisoned for years, Mandela never gave up (Elhanafi 7). Because of his ability to persist, negotiate, and advance peace, he was a remarkable leader. Future generations will be united by his legacy, which will promote justice and equality (Yang 398). Nelson Mandela motivated his supporters and the neighborhood despite persecution and death threats.

Because of his unwavering commitment to advancing justice, equality, and reconciliation throughout his life, Nelson Mandela is the ideal model for a powerful leader. Amid unfathomable anguish, he had incredible tenacity and determination, and the story of his perseverance and will to live continues to motivate people worldwide. It is remarkable how well he can function as a mediator and bring together people who disagree with one another (Elhanafi 7). Mandela's approach to leadership was so inclusive and empathetic that he could see things from everyone's perspective and find common ground. Young political leaders might take inspiration from Mandela's leadership by seeing how he overcame violent resistance to achieve his aims using nonviolent means (Yang 398). His commitment to democracy, justice, and equality should inspire political leaders to prioritize the welfare of their constituents over their interests (Elhanafi 7). Future leaders can learn from Mandela's approach to reconciliation on how to promote peace and cohesion in the wake of violence or discord (Yang 398). Leadership that values communication, compassion, and understanding may lead to more collaboration and a stronger sense of belonging (Elhanafi 7). In sum, Mandela should serve as an inspiration to aspiring politicians and leaders of all stripes.

The traits of effective leaders include vision, communication, dedication, and the ability to motivate followers to take action. Great leaders like Nelson Mandela and others have proven to have far-reaching effects on their followers and society as a whole. They motivate others to stand up for their beliefs, band together to achieve a common goal and make a positive difference in the world. Success and the furtherance of positive change are dependent on strong leadership, the importance of which cannot be overstated. Let us take inspiration from the qualities of great leaders like Nelson Mandela and work toward improving our lives and communities. Let us resolve to develop our leadership potential and make a difference in the world.

Works Cited

- Elhanafi, Enas. "Transformational Leadership: Flow, Resonance, and Social Change." The Journal of Traditions & Beliefs 6.1 (2019): 7.
- Yang, Kailin. "The good leaders of characteristics and behavior." Advances in Education, Humanities and Social Science Research 4.1 (2023): 398-398.

● 25% Overall Similarity

Top sources found in the following databases:

- 25% Internet database
- 0% Publications database

TOP SOURCES

The sources with the highest number of matches within the submission. Overlapping sources will not be displayed.

1	studymode.com Internet	24%
2	bumblephone.com Internet	1%